iNADO Seeks Chief Executive Officer

The Institute of National Anti-Doping Organisations (iNADO) is seeking a new Chief Executive Officer (CEO). The present CEO will step down at the end of 2019, or sooner if feasible.

iNADO is the international member body for National Anti-Doping Organisations funded by Member subscriptions, occasionally by grants from sporting and governmental bodies and other organizations, and by partnerships with anti-doping suppliers. 67 National Anti-Doping Organisations (NADOs) are now Members of iNADO. (iNADO members are responsible for over 90% of all testing done by NADOs and more than 60% of total testing done internationally.)

The CEO will lead and manage iNADO toward its Vision of Clean Sport Together, and toward its Mission of sharing best practices by NADOs and enabling NADOs to speak with one international voice.

iNADO offers its CEO a leading international role in serving and protecting clean athletes and clean sport. The Institute has an enthusiastic and supportive membership, and the expectation of additional Members. It enjoys a strong financial foundation and expects to attract additional funds in the near future. The CEO reports to an experienced international volunteer Board of Directors comprised of well-known anti-doping leaders from a variety of fields. iNADO has 2 multi-lingual full-time staff in addition to the CEO. Its offices are in Bonn, Germany, and are shared with the National Anti-Doping Agency of Germany.

Key responsibilities of the CEO include representing its membership to key stakeholders, expressing the views of the iNADO Board of Directors and membership on anti-doping policies, rules, regulations and practices (including to the media), promoting best practice for all aspects of anti-doping, supporting World Anti-Doping Code compliance by member NADOs, enabling iNADO to provide professional development for anti-doping practitioners, and managing the resources of iNADO while maintaining appropriate standards of financial and corporate governance.

Key requirements that candidates must have are a proven track record in leadership of organisations and of managing change.

Experience in a management role in an international environment would be an asset. They must demonstrate experience of working with or on a volunteer Board within either the public or private sector, and preferably relevant experience working in anti-doping in sport, for example in an Anti-Doping Organisation, or in government. Candidates are required to have a graduate university degree, a track record in leadership of organisations and of managing change, strong partnership working skills, strong negotiating skills and the ability to influence outcomes within a complex and diverse working environment. We value experience in dealing with the media and the presentation of information to external and internal audiences, excellent oral and written communication skills in English, sensitivity to cultural differences, and a demonstrated ability to work within an international context.
